

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

John C. Y.

The invention relates to a hang tag and method for labeling products. The hang tag is composed of a digital memory encoded with product information and a connecting member which removably couples the digital memory to the product. In this way, the hang tag provides consumers with a wealth of information relating to accessories, operating instructions, general company data, customer service information, web site links, telephone contacts, and other information consumers may find useful.